Gene Luen Yang began drawing comic books in the fifth grade. His 2006 graphic novel, American Born Chinese, published by First Second Books was a National Book Award finalist as well as the winner of the Printz Award and an Eisner Award. His 2013 graphic novel diptych, Boxers & Saints, is also a finalist for the National Book Award. The author lives in Oakland, CA.

The Avatar books are always good. The ones divided into 3 parts are so small though. We blow through them in a sitting. If I'd realized that, I would have waited for the compiled stories. No, I wouldn't have waited. Nevermind. I pre-ordered all of these so far. The art is always beautiful, and very consistent with the art we're familiar with in the TV show. Personally, I love seeing the kids growing up, so these post-show comic series are lots of fun. In The Rift, Toph has to deal with everyone's expectations of her, and that's pretty powerful for my 7-year old daughter to read and learn from her example.

Enjoyed the book however the cover fell right off a day after I got it in the mail.

Great graphic novel. The authors stay true to the character created/based on the original animated series. The artistry is great and really beautifully done. Every so often the response/dialogue are a little off from the characters, but I feel that might be due to the genre the characters are now being present through. Comics are different from TV.

Love the series. You are able to understand things that happen between avatar and korra. wish it didnt take so long for a new book to come out that is only 30 pages long or so. but that may just be me being impatient.

I liked avatar the last airbender show and I like where the comic books go with the show. But I've read all the avatar the last airbender comics and liked them except for the fact that they don't sell them as one comic. But other than that they were fine and a good read. By Elaine

I bought this for a gift. My niece loved it and says it's very true to the series.

Well worth the price, too!

Kids love these books. 5 & 6 year old boys and an 8 year old girl read them and sit and look at them...keeps them busy in the car!
