"Super-stylish travel guides - perfect for short break addicts" Harvey Nichols magazine; "Who should pack Footprint - readers who want to escape the crowd." The Observer"

Great one

I just picked this up and am headed to St Lucia next week (will update after I return). After getting this book, the Insight guide, and the Rough guide (which is anything but rough) I like this best. It's throw-in-your pocket small, chock full of info, and every page I open, I find things I want to do, and enough instruction on how to go about doing it. It has nice maps, and things seem well organized by topic (nice notable for parents- kids section). The top 10 list of things to do peaked my interest: every one of the items sound GREAT. I think this book is more tuned to the active traveller that really wants to get out and see their destination. I gave this 5 stars because it's the best guide I have for getting around, but it is lacking pictures, of which it only has a few. No big deal, I'll take my own :)

This was a strange purchase. A new book was very very expensive and I can only assume this was because the book is out of print. My purchase was an old library book - it cost about the same price as the original-not inflated-price of a new one. The book was in better condition than the retailer suggested so I was well pleased.
